Any identification of limited rights data or restricted computer software in the offeror's response is not determinative of the status of such data should a contract be awarded to the offeror.

BUY AMERICAN CERTIFICATE (MAY 2014)

The Buy American Act requires that a manufacturer certify that fifty-one (51%) percent of the components contained in their final commercial “off the shelf” product were mined and produced in the U.S. Congress determined in 2004 under the Omnibus Appropriation Bill (P.L. 108-99, Title V, SEC. 535) that the Buy American Act restrictions did not apply to information technology that is a commercial item. Since this time, all appropriation law has included similar language as seen below in the section noted on the 2008 Appropriation Bill.

From P.L. 110 -161, Title VI:

SEC. 618. In order to promote Government access to commercial information technology, the restriction on purchasing non-domestic articles, materials, and supplies set forth in the Buy American Act (41.U.S.C. 10a et seq.), shall not apply to the acquisition by Federal Government of Information Technology (as defined in 11101 of Title 40, United States Code), that is a commercial item (as defined in section 4(12) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 403 (12))).

This section of the appropriations bill was put in place because of an industry wide inability to certify that fifty-one (51%) percent or more of its components are mined or produced in the United States. Therefore, Lenovo (United States) Inc. like our industry counterparts, does not comply with the Buy American Act, since the Buy American Act restrictions do not apply to information technology commercial “off the shelf” products.

Sincerely,

Lenovo (United States) Inc.
